I read that a development of 800 residential dwelling units was approved in San Jose at 4th and St. John. A group is suing the City because the soil is contaminated with a cancer causing chemical called Benzene, and they don't feel that it was properly cleaned up.

I don't feel that housing or playgrounds will ever be safe on the Baylands.

Also, San Jose loses lawsuit against Santa Clara's Office and Retail Development project. Santa Clara will not be required to add housing to support the 25,000 potential new jobs it will be creating, and San Jose fears it will shoulder the housing burden.
